SNEHA's Gift Policy

SNEHA's code of conduct requires that all employees and consultants demonstrate the organization's commitment to treating all people and organizations, with whom we come into contact or conduct business with, impartially. Our employees will demonstrate the highest standards of ethics and conduct in all matters when dealing with

- All vendors and suppliers, both existing and potential
- Community beneficiaries, volunteers, Community Action Group (CAG) members
- Employees / Consultants and potential employees/consultants
- Any individual or organization with whom they come into contact

As one effort to demonstrate our commitment to these standards and behavior, all employees and consultants must abide by the following no-gift policy requirements. Any exceptions to the gift policy may be made only with the permission of the Director- Human Resources Management

No Gift Policy

No gifts of any kind, that are offered by vendors, suppliers, donors, potential employees, potential vendors, and suppliers, or any other individual or organization—no matter the value—will be accepted by any employee or consultants, at any time, on or off the work premises.

By "gift," SNEHA means any item or service including of monetary value or preferential treatment / services.

- This no-gift policy includes vendor or potential vendor or supplier-provided food, beverages, meals, or entertainment.
- This no-gift policy includes any business courtesy offered such as a product discount or any other benefit if the benefit is not extended to all employees / consultants.

Gift Policy Exceptions:

Exempted from this policy are :

a) Gifts such as t-shirts, pens, bags, folders and all other moderately priced items that employees /consultants obtain, as members of the public, at events such as conferences, training events, seminars etc that are offered equally to all members of the public attending the event.

b) Attendance at and food, beverages, and giveaways provided at events, conferences, press events, and parties funded by conference or event sponsors offered equally to all members of the public attending the event
c) Cards, thank you notes, certificates, or other written forms of thanks and recognition.

These moderately priced items provided as part of a "working" meeting or session to benefit and advance positive working relationships and organization interests. These activities are expected to be reciprocated by our organization in turn.

Informing of This Policy

Employees /consultants are required to professionally inform vendors, potential vendors and others of this no-gift policy, and the reasons SNEHA has adopted the policy. Employees/consultants will request that vendors respect our organization policy and not purchase and deliver any gift for our employees / consultants, a department, an office, or the organization, at any time, for any reason.

Actions for Gift Receipt

If an employee or department receives a gift:

- If feasible, the gift is returned to the vendor / supplier/ donor / other external stake holder.
- If not feasible to return the gift, the gift must be given out to SNEHA employees /consultants on SNEHA Annual Day, as one of the giveaways through a lucky draw
- Plants or flowers will be displayed in the lobby, or at another central location where all employees /consultants may enjoy their presence.
- Gifts of food that may arrive during the festive season, and at other times of the year when gift-giving is traditional, belong to the entire staff even if addressed to a single employee.
- Under no circumstances may an employee take a food gift home. Food gifts must be shared with and distributed to all staff, during work hours, in central, worksite locations.

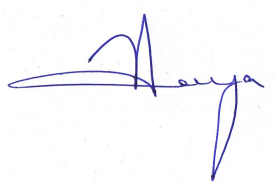
Supplemental Nature of Policy

This policy is supplemental to other organization codes of conduct, ethics, standards, values, and policies in the SNEHA employee handbook / SNEHA intranet and in other organization documents.

If any employee/consultant has questions about or needs clarification of any aspect of this policy, the employee/consultant should check with their supervisor. If the supervisor is uncertain, the Head of Human Resources is the arbiter of the gift policy to ensure consistent employee treatment across the organization

This policy takes the place of any earlier policy and is effective from date of this communication. Through receipt of this email communication, all employees and consultant acknowledge that they have received and understand the SNEHA gift policy.

Yours sincerely,



Vanessa D'Souza
